TU VOZ INVISIBLE (YOUR INVISIBLE VOICE)

In a hauntingly familiar country, Argentine reporter Clara Guinzburg returns to Spain to interview a famous writer. However, it will be a first step to uncover the brutal truth hidden in her childhood, and behind her mother's death 30 years earlier

Clara Guinzburg returns to Spain to interview Nora Rizzo, an internationally successful writer, although her journey is overshadowed by the discovery of a family secret that is the perfect script for the novel she dreams of writing.

Her mother, who died 30 years ago, left an enigmatic folder that the journalist discovers by chance. In the summer of 1988 her mother had a romantic relationship with a man who would end her daughter's life before committing suicide. Clara is not only surprised by this revelation, but also that her mother died shortly after that crime in the same Valencian town where that tragedy happened.

KEY SELLING POINTS

- A brutal thriller, where the most terrible truth shall be revealed, but not without consequences, in a perfectly depicted Valencian small town.
- Javier Arias offers a fantastic depiction on the intrigue, and even the obsession on finding the truth behind the lack of a mother: an authentic personal seal of his works that perfectly executes.

Javier Arias Artacho was born in 1972 in Barcelona, although he grew up in Argentina, a country to which he has emotional and family ties. He has a degree in Hispanic Philology and a Diploma in Religious Sciences. He works as a teacher in secondary and high school, and as an article writer in the media. He is married, has three daughters and lives in Valencia. His career as a writer has earned him the respect of critics and readers. In the field of education, his books with a strong social background, such as "Náufragos" or "Solo donde estás tú", stand out. However, his best-known novels are "Eitana", "La esclava judía", "El general maldito", "La tierra del viento" and his latest work, "Nadie sabrá de mí", which received exceptional reviews.

With his masterful emotional prose, Alejandro Palomas delivers a grand finale to the narrative universe he began with “Una madre” and continued with “Un perro” and “Un amor”, once again presenting us with an intense, lively and vibrant text at his best.

How much does a mother know? As long as mothers are alive, we are first and foremost children. We talk to them when no one is looking because we know they are there, even if we can't see them. We know they are eternal.

On the afternoon that Fer, Emma and Silvia took their mother to the emergency room, suffering from what appeared to be a minor infection, they could not imagine that life had set the stage for something completely unexpected. When they leave the hospital after a short stay, the familiar landscape has changed: the three siblings are suddenly forced to become both children and caregivers as they prepare for the possible orphanhood that may follow the absence of someone as eccentric and irreplaceable as Amalia.

The good news is that Elena knows how people's minds work. The bad news is that her stalker's cruelty seems to be totally inhuman. Who is he and why does he hate her so much? How long has he been stalking her? Is she unknowingly sharing her day-to-day life with a sadistic killer?

Let's play the wolf's game one last time. Who are you?

When four bodies are found in the church of a small northern town, Commissioner Adam de la Cruz and Inspector Bruno Dávila travel to the scene to assist in the investigation. Everything points to suicide, but one of the victims has a message written on their leg: "Hello, Commissioner de la Cruz." Someone seems to be one step ahead of the police. An unusual case has disoriented the police of Barcelona: in the tunnel of an abandoned metro station, a body appears in conditions difficult to explain and harder to believe. SONÓ UN VIOLÍN EN PARÍS (A VIOLIN WAS HEARD IN PARIS)

A group of privileged tourists embarks on their Grand Tour across Europe in the late 19th century, all the while having their secrets unveiled through a weekly bulletin titled Le Petit Journal

In September 1893, Don Guillermo Bogarín organizes a meticulous tour through newly unified Italy, Austria-Hungary, and the German Empire for a select group of travelers. Among them are architect Jacobo Figuera, businessman Juan Álvarez-Caballero, impressionist painter Ferdinand Mercier, theater producer Jeanne Leroy with her nephew Henri Collet, Russian Countess Karimova, music publisher Mrs. Dupont, and virtuoso violinist Clara Balaguer. While Don Guillermo has his own reasons for leaving Paris, he soon learns the group harbors secrets, as a social column “Le Petit Journal” begins to reveal their affairs. María Reig’s historical novel explores the tensions of fin-de-siècle Europe and the need to confront our fears and take control of our lives.

KEY SELLING POINTS

- Her debut novel surprised everyone by selling over 80,000 copies, introducing us to a young historical fiction author who burst onto the industry to stay.
- In true Gossip Girl or Bridgerton style, a renowned Parisian newspaper holds privileged information about the travelers – friendship, rivalry, obsession, admiration, and romance.
- What seems like a simple bourgeois adventure will ultimately become an experience that completely changes the lives of the selected travelers.

María Reig studied Journalism and a Master’s in Corporate Communication Management.

In 2018, she decided to self-publish her first novel, Papel y Tinta. She launched a crowdfunding campaign to finance the marketing and communication plan she had designed for the release, and in less than 24 hours, she achieved her funding goal. The success of the campaign opened her the doors to the publishing world and to historical fiction. Papel y Tinta reached bookstores in January 2019, published by Suma de Letras. With it, she won the Debut Literary Prize “Un Año de Libros” from El Corte Inglés. Since then, she has published two other novels. The past few years, she has been balancing her work as a novelist with her History degree studies, with the goal of expanding her knowledge and refining her skills as a historical fiction writer.

A romance novel about a young literature teacher who falls in love with a convict—a forbidden love in a new subgenre: prison romance.

Have you ever thought if you would be able to fall in love with a prisoner? Do you believe that love overcomes any prejudice? If any of these questions have made you hesitate, that's what happened to Cora Quiroga, a young professor who lived in a Galician village with her boyfriend Mason Brown, a promising lawyer. The couple moves to Madrid, where Cora meets Roque in prison, a man accused of killing a young man, although he claims to be innocent. Soon a special chemistry arises between them and makes the girl rethink her whole life. Her relationship with Mason becomes a love triangle and the irrepressible desire that the convict awakens in her puts her at a crossroads. Should Cora follow her heart and gamble on a forbidden relationship with an incarcerated man? To do so, she will need to be sure of Roque's innocence and face Mason's wrath.

FERNANDO BELASTEGUÍN: ESTA ES MI HISTORIA (FERNANDO BELASTEGUÍN: THIS IS MY STORY)

The incredible biography of Fernando Belasteguín, 16 consecutive years as the world's number 1 in padel

"Many times I ask myself if it's worth continuing to play padel, if all the sacrifices I've had to make have been worth it: being away from my parents, my sister, my grandparents, leaving my country, Argentina, competing in a different place every two weeks, missing countless moments (good and bad) with my wife and three children... Today, I have no doubt: absolutely yes. Padel is my way of life and that of my children. If I'm asked the same question when I approach the end of my career, the answer will likely be a resounding 'no,' because I have given padel a thousand times more than it has given me. There is no tournament, no title, no prize that can make up for all the absences".

TESLA Y EINSTEIN JUEGAN AL AJEDREZ (TESLA AND EINSTEIN PLAY CHESS)

This book explores the dichotomy between invention (Tesla) and discovery (Einstein) through many inventions by different great inventors and many discoveries by various renowned scientists.

While invention is the process of creating something new from scratch, discovery is the process of finding something that already exists in nature. We see how, in many cases, these two processes are closely related, with one often leading to the other. This book engagingly analyzes the similarities and differences between invention and discovery, and how they have been applied in modern science and technology. It highlights the duality between the creative process of invention (Tesla) and the scientific process of discovery (Einstein), with each chapter exploring an invention and how it relates to one or more scientific discoveries. Like a game of chess, but with the key difference that in every case, both players win.

KEY SELLING POINTS

- A delightful educational science book that explains major inventions and discoveries by various scientists that have changed the world.
- Techno-science in small doses, with short readings perfect for moments like waiting for the bus.
- A true tribute to science and technology, offering an extra dose of culture.

HISTORIOGRAMA (HISTORIOGRAM)

A refreshing take on self-betterment: Authors Gabriel and Luis García de Oro want to teach you how to take control of your own story.

There has been increasing discussion regarding Storytelling, the art of telling stories that also serves to sell a product, a project, or oneself. In fact, each person repeats certain stories to themselves, and within that narrative lies the limits of their life.

From classic folklore tales like Little Red Riding Hood, or contemporary blockbuster series like Stranger Things, stories reflect a culture's beliefs and aspirations. However, sometimes they can affect our unconscious, and become a pull we cannot escape. Unless we identify their power and learn how to change our mentality. In HISTORIOGRAMA, authors Gabriel and Luis García de Oro detail twelve "storygrams" that might allow readers to identify why certain things happen to them and take control of the narrative of their lives.

KEY SELLING POINTS

- A refreshing take on self-betterment: how to take control of your own story.
- Discusses a topic most readers might not be familiar with: storytelling as a tool to grow a business or make your life better.
- Gabriel is a bestselling author of both children's and adult's books. His works have been translated into over four languages
- Written by two highly experienced authors who have been in the creative world for years.

Luis García de Oro creativity, teaching, and storytelling are the three passions that have defined Luis's life throughout his career. He works as a Creative Director at Ogilvy Barcelona and combines it with teaching at various schools and universities.

Gabriel García de Oro Although he graduated in Philosophy, he ended up working in advertising, a field where he has won a number of awards. He's currently an Executive Creative Director at OgilvyOne. He combines this activity with writing. He is the author of many children and young adult books, non fiction, and regular articles for the weekly El País Semanal.

ESTO NO SE DICE (WE DON'T TALK ABOUT THAT)

A necessary depiction of the greatest evils we face: sexual abuse, bullying, depression... All through many childhood memories of Alejandro Palomas

After a childhood marked by sexual abuse, years of eternal bullying and a hypersensitivity that on many occasions brought him to the brink of suicide, Alejandro Palomas spins in these pages a serene and electrifying story with which he flies unfiltered over childhood memories, and how the power of imagination and writing was the last plank of salvation. This is the most sincere testimony of a man who bet on living and who succeeded thanks to his passion for inventing and sharing worlds, always with tenderness and humor, and who now transforms his life into the greatest of stories.

Literature allowed him to create imaginary universes better than the life around him and over the years these fictions have helped him find the words to show the whole truth.

KEY SELLING POINTS

- Childhood sexual abuse victims are 10 times more likely to commit suicide: this is the sincerest testament of a man who bet on living.
- An emotional, honest and beautiful depiction of Paloma's tremendous childhood, that could be relatable to many.
- Brave enough to adventure through many necessary -yet taboo- topics.

Alejandro Palomas (Barcelona, 1967) has a degree in English Philology from the University de Barcelona and a Master's degree in Poetry from the New College of San Francisco. He has collaborated with several newspapers and publications and translated writers such as Katherine Mansfield, Gertrude Stein, Willa Cather and Jack London. He wrote the screenplay "Ojos de Invierno", based on his novel Tanta Vida (2008), the rights for which were sold to Filmax. In 2002, he was chosen as the FNAC New Talent for his novel "El tiempo del corazón". His latest works ("Una Madre", "Un Perro" and "Un Hijo") were all critically acclaimed and translated into a number of languages.

This book is about limits, those red lines that protect the integrity of the little ones and allow them to share life with other people. How can we sustain conscious limits and agreed rules that provide structure and security to our children, how can we avoid falling into authoritarianism and arbitrariness or, on the contrary, into a lack of limits that lead children to feel fear, insecurity or to seek validation at all costs? With the humility that characterizes her, Míriam Tirado shares her own doubts, learnings, challenges and achievements on the road to loving and responsible limits. A deeply personal work, which accompanies us with empathy and humor in the exploration of our own relationship with limits so that we are able, with the help of different exercises and tools, to provide children with coherent support.

This increased Miriam's passion for these subjects and, when her first daughter was born in 2009, she decided to start a blog to narrate this exciting new period. This portal is still active and publishes articles on motherhood, fatherhood and raising children. RABIETAS (TANTRUMS)

A complete guide on understanding tantrums, using them to make children learn and grow

All children have them and all parents have to deal with them. They are the famous tantrums, capable of upsetting even the most conscientious and respectful adult. Temper tantrums often bring out our worst side, and in those cases, sadness and a sense of failure are inevitable.

What if so much suffering is unnecessary? What if it is absurd to even think about putting an end to tantrums, because they are an essential aspect in the development of children? What if the key is you, your ability to be present and to bring awareness to the situation?
